

Lesson 6: Hebrews 4:1-13: ENTERING GOD'S REST

I. Introduction

Hebrews 4 opens by affirming the certainty of the rest that God has promised His children. The writer expresses a serious concern that many believers are still at risk of missing this promised rest, emphasizing the essential role faith plays in fully experiencing it. This rest has been established since the beginning of time, designed by God for His children to enjoy—just as He Himself experienced it. The writer references Psalm 95 again, reminding readers that some will never enter this rest, with disobedience being the key reason.

The passage goes on to explain that this place of rest is still available and attainable for believers today, as long as they obey God. God's rest is designed so that believers can cease from their own labor and works, and instead simply enjoy all that God has already accomplished for them. Verses 12 and 13 highlight the incredible transparency that exists with God: He sees the mind, soul, and heart of every person—nothing is hidden from Him. Because of this, it is vital for believers to submit to God and His Word, as failing to do so risks the same outcome that the Israelites of old experienced.
